Washington, Jan. 5 —(AP)—President Truman may ask congress for $5,000,000,000 to finance the government in the year beginning July 1, legislative leaders said today.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or heavy passages with a burning and stinging sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, and successfully relieve millions for over 50 years. Doan's gives every relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Lawmakers who got a preview of the budget in a White House session with the president reported that amount as the total now expected to be asked.

They said that slightly more than $15,000,000,000 would be for military costs, including stockpiling and the first year cost of starting a program of universal military training.

When Mr. Truman urged the UMT program in the past, he estimated that the first year cost of getting it under way would be about $400,000,000.

Legislators said the budget figure of $41,000,000,000 was arrived at by disregarding tax refunds as a part of the outgo. They are expected to total about $2,000,000,000 this year.

Thus, if the same basis were used as in the present year, the budget would be hiked to $43,000,000,000.

This compares with $39,500,000,000 the president requested in expenditures for the year beginning last July 1.

The budget message is expected to go to congress tomorrow.

Besides Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Budget Director Webb, the president called in those Democratic congressional leaders: Senator Lucas of Illinois, the new majority floor leader; Senator McKellar of Tennessee, who heads the appropriations committee; Senator George of Georgia, fi-

Hawaii Also Has Its Annual Cattle Roundup

Kaibui, Maui, Jan. 5 —(AP)—Roundup time in Texas was never like this—a Hawaiian cattle roundup of white faced Herefords for Guam.

Cattle ranching is big business in Hawaii. In the movies, cattlemen have to swim out to a ship to get hoisted aboard. But the cow punchers work on this shipment of 144 Hereford heifers to Guam was slick, smooth and un-Hollywood.

It took three hours to load the cattle aboard the chieft, a 2,500-ton navy freighter. The heifers went aboard in wooden pens, six to a pen. The pens then were bolted to the deck as a precaution against a heavy sea.

House Speaker Rayburn, Rep. McCormack, floor leader; Rep. Doughton of North Carolina, ways and means chairman in the new congress, and Rep. Cannon of Missouri, chairman of appropriations.

After the meeting Rayburn and McCormack told reporters that the budget was discussed only in a very general way.

Most of the time, they said, was taken up with preview of the general legislative recommendations in today's state of the union message.

THE STORY: When sixteen-year-old Merry Carson learns that her dashing father, Kin, has asked her selfish mother, Susan, for a divorce, her whole world turns topsy-turvy. Kin leaves home and Susan goes to pieces. Aunt Jane comes to look after things. The doctor advises a change for Susan and they take her to St. Vincent's, an island resort. Here Susan buys a house from Carter Bagby. Carter treats her gallantly and Susan begins to perk up. Merry goes to spend a couple of days with her father in their home town. She sees Tip Kennedy again but tells him she still doesn't believe in marriage, after what happened to her parents. Merry's father says he has decided the Marshallville house to her. She returns to St. Vincent's. Tip and others of the Marshallville crowd spend the summer there and Merry enjoys herself. In August she and her mother see the announcement of her father's second marriage in the paper.

"I shall do my utmost to make your mother happy, Merry. I assure you, and to be a good father to you," said Carter, but there was now a faint edge to his tone.

"Thanks, I have a father, and a darned good one, and that will be quite sufficient, thank you," flashed Merry before she could control the words.

"How dare you be so outrageous, indignantly," How dare you be so rude? Apologize to Carter immediately."

"But Merry had had all she could take, and suddenly she ran down the hall and into the swing door, closed the door and hid behind the face down across the bed."

"Some times later she was too dazed and shaken to know how she had got into the room, but she was on the bed, patting her hair, and she was soothed as though she had been six months old and in need of being burped."

"Honestly, Merry, I am astounded. You have been blind, that you couldn't see this coming?" asked Aunt Jane at last.

Merry rolled over and sat up. "Aunt Jane, we can't let her marry him—we can't."

"How do you suggest we stop it? By locking her up somewhere on bread and water?"

"But there must be something we can do."

"Oh, there is, of course."

"What, Aunt Jane?"

"Take it and pretend to like it."

"You mean just stand by and not try to save her?"

"Save her?" Aunt Jane snorted furiously. "My dear blessed little innocent! How the heck can you save her from something she wants? She's crazy about the guy."

She's been married so long that it's a habit she can't break. She's the incurably domestic type, born to marry and to be loved."

"Merry, darling, I have some news for you," said Susan gaily. "Darling, you're going to have a brand-new father."

Merry felt as though she reeled from the shock, though as a matter of fact she only went rigid, and white-faced beneath her honey-gold tan, as she stared with wide, incredulous eyes from one beaming face to the other.

Your mother has done me the very great honor to accept my proposal of marriage," said Carter pompously, and beamed fatuously at Susan.

"Mother!" Merry was too shocked, too swept off her feet to be able to control her shocked disapproval, her bewildered protest.

Wholesale Tax May Replace Sales Tax

Little Rock, Jan. 5 —(AP)—Elimination of the Arkansas two per cent retail sales tax was recommended by the legislative council's revenue and taxation committee today.

In its place the committee will ask the council to recommend adoption of a two and one-half per cent wholesale tax.

Committee chairman A. N. Sen. Ernest Maner of Hot Springs, said that under the proposal the two and one-half per cent tax would be collected on each retailer's wholesale invoices and that the tax would be figured in the cost when computing the retail sale price of an item.

To make up for the difference between the retail price on which the present two per cent sales tax is collected and the wholesale price, the committee voted to fix the proposed levy at two and one-half per cent.

Dean Morley, who is to become revenue commissioner when Sid McMath takes office as governor, attended today's committee meeting. Chairman Maner designated Morley and Lawrence Mitchell, Prescott, as subcommittee members to prepare proposed statutory qualifications for revenue department auditors. The committee specified that minimum age, education and physical condition requirements be set up by statute.

The committee also tentatively approved proposed legislation to give cities and counties more revenue from pinball machines, music machines and coin operated vending devices.

Maner named Rep. Paul Van Dalsen, Perryville, and Glenn G. Zimmerman, North Little Rock, on a committee to draft the proposed legislation and also study the possibility of permitting cities to decide whether they will allow pinball machines to operate.

Two weeks later, when most of the crowd were gone, Merry came home from a bicycle trip to the library and entered the house, her arms filled with books, whistling cheerfully. From the big living room, Susan called to her; and there was something excited and oddly breathless in Susan's voice that startled Merry so that she spilled the books hastily on the table beneath the big gilt-framed mirror and went swiftly into the living room.
Susan, flushed and bright-eyed, stood beside a beaming Carter Bagby, and they looked at Merry with what was to Merry in that moment of wild shock, an almost indecent youthfulness.
"Merry, darling, I have some news for you," said Susan gaily. "Darling, you're going to have a brand-new father."
Merry felt as though she reeled from the shock, though as a matter of fact she only went rigid, and white-faced beneath her honey-gold tan, as she stared with wide, incredulous eyes from one beaming face to the other.

spies. Maybe it should be possible to convict on less demonstrable evidence than is required now. President Truman has warned that it will be difficult to make these laws tougher without running into the Bill of Rights. Yet the national security must be protected by every legitimate means.

Before the new Congress adds any new teeth to the espionage laws, we hope that its members to the question of how much the present laws were at fault in the story revealed by Whitaker Chambers, and how much fault may be laid to indifference and politics.

Mr. Chambers held back altogether too much information in his first disclosures. Yet if even those incomplete charges had been treated seriously and acted on vigorously at the time he made them, there would have been no difficulty today with the statute of limitations.

And what of the tragicomic sideshow that has been presented since Mr. Chambers' pumpkin pie yielded a harvest of new evidence? The Un-American Activities Committee, as seems to be its custom, has produced a lot more sensational charges than it has solid evidence. But there is plenty of solid evidence, all the same. And the Justice Department ignored it until the committee goaded it into a somewhat surly action.

Since then each group has seemed about as anxious to discredit the other as it has to get to the bottom of what was clearly a dangerous laxity in State Department in Chicago.

Miss Louise Elder, Miss Velma Tobor, Misses Pauline and Corrine Morris have returned to Waxahatchie, Texas where they are attending the Southwestern Bible Institute.

Mrs. K. G. Hamilton, Mrs. Rob Jones, Mrs. John Britt, Mrs. Cline Franks, Mrs. A. Nash and Mrs. Reubin Wilson attended the Bridge Club in the home of Mrs. Brad Slater in Texarkana, Wednesday afternoon.

Wildcat Strike Halts Service in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Officially there was no strike, but there also was no public transportation service in Milwaukee today. Served with a circuit court restraining order last night, the AFL Streetcar and Bus Operators union, Division 998, called off its strike set for 4 o'clock this morning.

But after three hours of curtailed operation, streetcars and busses began pulling into car barns. George Kummerlein, transport company superintendent, reported service "at a standstill," shortly after 9 a.m.

Even though some streetcars were in operation in the early morning hours, most Milwaukeeans got to work by hitchhiking rides and using private cars. Some didn't get to work at all.

At the car barns, workers reported that drivers were awaiting official notification by union stewards that the strike had been called off.

Charles Brehm, recording secretary of division 99, denied emphatically that the idleness of the operators constituted a "wildcat strike."

"Whatever action the members are taking is entirely on their own initiative," said Brehm.

ment operations. Maybe we do need new espionage laws. But certainly we need a different application of the present ones than has been displayed in the Chambers-Liss case. We need an orderly process of inquiry and prosecution, instead of two uncooperative investigations going on at the same time.

A bipartisan policy has eliminated politics from considerations of the country's security abroad. Why not have a similar policy in safeguarding that security at home?

DOROTHY DIX

Selfish Mother

Dear Miss Dix: I have been going with a girl for the past six years and plan to marry her soon, but I have a problem which I am unable to solve. It is this: I am well-to-do, own my own house. My mother, who is 64, lives with me. I am her means of support. She objects to my marrying and I know that my future wife would not get along with her if they lived together.

Now what should I do? Marry the woman I love and live a happy life, or stay single and live in misery?

Answer: If you were a desperately poor man who earned barely enough to support yourself and you had a sick old mother to care for, it might be your duty to give up all thoughts of love and marriage and having children. But such is not the case. You are amply able to support a family. Your mother is not helpless invalid. She isn't even old, judged by modern standards.

Of course, it is perfectly understandable why your mother doesn't want you to marry. She doesn't want her baby boy to cut the apron strings by which she has held him so long. Also she wants to be at the head of his house and have the prestige that that gives her. And no doubt she bursts into tears every time you go to see that patient girl who has been waiting six years for you to give her a wedding ring. And why she has done it, goodness only knows. She should have called time on you long ago and you either put up or shut up.

Problem is Simple
So your problem narrows itself down to this: Are you going to let a selfish old woman rule your life for you? Of course, your mother and your wife would fight if you put them together. So don't try it. Establish Mother in a nice boarding house or a cute little apartment, where she can have her own treasures and every comfort; and if she chooses to gripe over it, let her gripe.

No merit accrues to a man for sacrificing, needlessly, himself and the woman he loves to a possessive mother. Consider the girl a little.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Can a man stay in love with a girl very long if her father sits around all the time and listens to every word that is said? We are never trusted to alone, even for a moment, or to go out to any place of amusement without some of the family accompanying us. I can truly say that I have proved that I am a gentleman as well as a decent chap with no evil intentions toward the girl.

It is hard on me and hard on my girl, for she cries all the time. What would advise me to do, for I can't stand sitting any longer, especially with no future changes in store for me?

DISGUSTED ED
Answer: Well, Ed, I certainly don't wonder that you are disgusted with having the whole family chaperone you when you go to see your girl. No man can put the proper technique into a kiss if the girl's mouth is across the room from him. Evidently your girl's father does not want his daughters to marry, for he is taking the surest way of raising up a crop of old maids if he never allows his girls to have dates, or step out even to the movies unless the family are along to protect them.

Parents who do their duty by their daughters hang the welcome sign on the door and do all they can to help their girls get good husbands, instead of scaring them off.

would get on the nerves of any girl to have Mama understudy her. It would also be disillusioning to see Mama dressed up in a replica of one's best frock, for the gown that looks wonderful on one person is a caricature on another person of different age and type.

One of the wisest sayings in the world is "be your age." And look it and dress it. An old woman can be beautiful if she wears the clothes that belong to her age. But put her in a décolleté gown that shows her bones or emphasizes her fat; let her be coquettish instead of dignified, and she becomes a figure of fun. Old sheep never yet looked like spring lamb.

Fair Enough

There is an unfinished, mysterious story in the case of Sam Carp, of Bridgeport, Conn., a brother-in-law of V. M. Molotov, the Russian foreign minister, who was handed some enormous amount of money to spend in the United States and escaped thorough examination by the intervention of Dean Acheson, the undersecretary of state in the Alger Hiss case. Carp pretends to be a dumb greenhorn and makes people laugh at his low-comedy dialect. Later he laughs back. He has made a fortune outsmarting Yankee traders in Connecticut. There is no way to determine how much money he has. Molotov, who trusted him with either $200 million or $300 million, because Acheson stopped the inquiry just when the committee on un-American activities was getting hot. He certainly was a foreign power by his own admission and was not registered as such. Other men have been prosecuted in criminal proceedings for failure to register. But Carp insisted that he was not an "agent" and didn't have to. This was the intricate committee which barely held the franchise during the Roosevelt-Stalin honeymoon and its recommendations were ignored by the Department of Justice, which had the legal duty of prosecuting registered agents of foreign powers.

Carp said he had gone to Russia to visit his sister, who was Molotov's wife, and "perhaps to make a dollar." The sister had the cosmetics monopoly in Russia and the prince of privilege of the Roosevelt administration, was sitting pretty.

She was even allowed to come to the United States and visit brother Sam's home at Bridgeport, although he testified that she had been surrounded by Russian strong-arm men, even in the United States.

The cunning trader, whose guilt in devising tangled business deals commands the awe of Connecticut Yankees, particularly in the wet fuel trade, testified under oath that he couldn't just remember whether it was $200 million or $300 million that he was commissioned to spend here, and was allowed to stand on that incredible statement. He also said he didn't quite remember whether the commission was to be two per cent or three per cent, and got away with that. In other words, Carp didn't know whether he stood to make four million dollars, the commission on $200 million at two per cent, or five million, the commission on $300 million at three per cent.

John Rankin, the gentleman from Mississippi, who has endured outrageous libels from professional lackeys of the Roosevelt-Communist cabal, is one of the anti-entities who say that Acheson demanded that the committee quit cold on Carp. In justification of this subversion of the duty of congress it was represented to the committee by the state department that Russia was in a bad plight and might make peace with Hitler and even join the Axis. None of the propaganda forces which fouly abused Mr. Rankin on the radio ever depicted a title of the attention Sam Carp and his mysterious cohorts that was given to a few rascals pro-Nazi soapbox exhorters in New York. To wheedle the Kremlin, the committee flinched in its duty.

Clare Boothe Luce, then in congress from Fairfield County, Conn., where Bridgeport lies, made a private investigation of some tangles of Carp's web. Carp was close to a person known as Leigh Dandenberg, who at the present has been in port for some years a weekly scandal sheet mostly devoted to nasty insinuations against prominent citizens who were unmistakably described but never named. Dandenberg identified his practice for the state department as being himself above legal politicians before the new deal's Federal Communications commission for a F. M. radio license. Of course, the new deal, C. C. gave Dandenberg the license.

Mrs. Luce's inquiry followed Dandenberg on a trip to Russia after the 1944 campaign in which he had heaped personal abuse on her. A great galaxy of exhorters from the ethical slums of Broadway and Hollywood had been recruited by Sidney Hillman's fronts and cells and sent to Connecticut to oppose her. She disposed of them all, one by one, closing with Quentin Reynolds, the absentee war correspondent who covered the Dieppe invasion from a battleship and the Normandy invasion from Hollywood. Clare had covered the fall of France, and she now claimed that this Ferdinand the bull of war journalism was out of place attacking a woman in Connecticut with war to be covered on many fronts. She won easily and went on to canvass the life of Dandenberg so thoroughly that he has shown her great respect ever since. She knows where the body is buried, as the saying goes. The committee on un-American activities sought to ascertain if Carp was backing Dandenberg with Russian money. The money just vanished like smoke. Dandenberg never was examined. Carp gave double-talk answers and the committee submitted because Acheson said the state department wished it so. There is no assurance that such thing. Acheson himself may have wished it so.

Not only was Dandenberg permitted to go to Russia, but his wife, too, toured safe war areas, writing unforgotten copy like Eleanor Roosevelt's.

Throughout this time, Roosevelt ordered that all "publishers" be denied correspondents' credentials. For publishers friendly to the administration, evasions were contrived. One evaded a false status in the Red Cross, a political apapage of the Democratic party then as now. Dandenberg got phony credentials from the state department as liaison officer between the American and British press, although his only publication was a questionable weekly and his printing plant was turning out comic books.

On his return, Dandenberg issued orders that his state department connection should not be mentioned in his own paper. The pose was too absurd to stand professional inquiry.

Sam Carp had testified that Dandenberg's paper was so dirty that he would not have it in his house where his children might see it. He didn't exaggerate.

The final disposition of the $200 or $300 million has never been determined.

Denver's Boryla Is Top Cage Scorer

New York, Jan. 6 — (UP)—Denver University's Vince Boryla, not invincible, but gradually approaching point-making perfection, regained his position atop the nation's major college individual scoring heap today with an average of nearly 22 points.

The former Notre Dame and olympic cage ace has pumped in 175 points in eight games to give him an average of 21.9, ranking him ahead of Ohio State's Dick Schnitzler who scored 130 marks in six contests for a 21.6 average. Only one-tenth of a point behind in third position was Ralph Richter of Cincinnati who has 108 tallies in five outings.

Joe Neenker of Virginia, with 106 in five games was fourth, and last week's leader, Colgate's Ernie Vanderwehe, rounded out the top five with 169 in eight battles. Tight defenses by two Big Nine powers, Minnesota and Illinois, throttled Vanderwehe with 39 points in three games during the past week.

Less than a single percentage point separated the five leaders.

Woman Named in Attempt to Bribe Cagers

New York, Jan. 6 — (UP)—A plump brunette identified as the feminine decoy in an alleged attempt to bribe the Boston Red Sox for further questioning by District Attorney Frank Hogan.

Hogan said he hoped to learn if a national gambling syndicate masqueraded as the $1,000 bribe offered to George Washington University basketball squad, to throw a Madison Square Garden game Tuesday night.

The brunette, Sylvia Brill, 24, is a sister-in-law of Joseph Aronowitz, one of the men on $50,000 bail each for grand jury action on attempted bribery charges. Hogan said a date between the girl and Shapiro had been arranged for a New Year's Eve party. She was questioned collectively yesterday.

The four held in city prison were Aronowitz, 35, Philip Klein, 34, William Rivlin, 43, all of New York, and Jack Levy, 40, of Miami, Fla.

Hogan asked the grand jury to find out if the alleged "fix" was the work of "tin horn sports" or whether a huge national ring was behind the scheme. The jury listened to testimony from Shapiro for two hours yesterday, and Hogan said he hoped to obtain an indictment some time next week. The suspects are liable to a five-year prison term if convicted.

A hearing was scheduled for next Tuesday.

Boudreau Is Named Athlete of the Year

New York, Jan. 6 — (AP)—Lou Boudreau, player-manager of the world champion Cleveland Indians, today was named male athlete of the year for 1948 in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

The personable Cleveland shortstop barely edged out Bob Mathias of Tulare, Calif., the olympic decathlon champion, in a point tabulation. Actually Mathias had 34 first place votes to 33 for Boudreau but the Indians' skipped slid home first on seconds and third to win 150-149.

The votes of the 99 participating sportswriters were tabulated on the customary basis of three points for a first place ballot, two for a second and one for a third.

Boudreau backed up his 33 firsts with 23 seconds and 11 thirds. Mathias had 34 firsts, 19 seconds and 9 thirds.

Yesterday Mathias was named the winner of the Sullivan Memorial award. They trophy goes annually to the year's outstanding amateur athlete as determined in a poll conducted by the Amateur Athletic Union.

It was strictly a two-man race between the skillful Cleveland infielder and Mathias, the "uncommon" high school boy who followed up a surprising national AAU decathlon victory with an olympic triumph.

Boudreau's 1948 successes were topped by the World Series success of his team against the Braves. Boudreau finished the final off game with the Boston Red Sox in addition to leading the Indians to their first pennant since 1920. Lou played the most shortest of his career in the league. He hit .335, second only to Ted Williams, and perfected the pickoff play that created such a stir in the series.

Mathias, then only 17, won his olympic crown under most dramatic circumstances. The 6-foot, 2-inch athlete finished the final three events of the two-day competition in virtual obscurity. Only a few dim bulbs pierced the semi-darkness of a rainy evening when he finished the last event. Most of his opponents and all but 200 diehards of the crowd of 60,000 had long departed.

Champion Eagles of Philadelphia Up for Sale

Philadelphia, Jan. 6 — (UP)—The Philadelphia Eagles, who won their first National Football League title 19 days ago, were up for sale today for "somewhere between $250,000 and $300,000."

The club, owned by millionaire Alexis Thompson, strong proponent of peace with the rival All-America conference, reportedly lost $32,000 this season despite its championship performance.

Social Security Payment Hike Sought

Washington, Dec. 5 — (AP)—Three administration-supporting senators and one house member jointly proposed legislation today for increased social security benefits and a national system of pre-paid medical care.

The sponsors—senators McGrath (D-R.I.), Wagner (D-N.Y.) and Murray (D-Mont.), and Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.)—said the legislation calls for:

1. Health insurance for 125,000,000 persons with "free choice of doctor, local grass-roots administration and full use of voluntary plans providing medical services."

2. Extension and liberalization of the existing insurance system for survivors insurance, "extending coverage to some 25,000,000 more persons and doubling the average benefits."

3. Extension of the insurance system to public employees when an insured individual is out of work due to sickness or disability.

4. Extension, simplification and liberalization of the existing unemployment insurance and employment service programs.

Racing Attendance and Betting Shows Decline in 1948

New York, Jan. 5 — (AP)—Racing attendance and betting showed another decline in 1948, but don't feel so sorry for the horse tracks and the state treasury—its still a billion-dollar-a-year business.

An Associated Press survey of racing in 21 states where the sport of kings operated in 1948 disclosed attendance was down 6.70 per cent and pari-mutuel betting off 7.27 per cent as compared with 1947. Harness racing totals were not included in the survey.

The betting total last year was more than a billion dollars for the entire year, with 1947 totals of $549,491,530. Only two years saw a fifth season in a row hitting billion-dollar totals in the mutuel windows, 1946 with $1,301,287,455, and 1947, with $1,630,815,373.

Attendance in 1948 was 24,181,207, compared with 25,919,110 horse players who clicked through the betting windows in 1947. There were 2,457 racing days in the 21 states, 3 fewer than in 1947.

New York again led in the betting department, with $333,028,304, while California remained tops in attendance with 5,101,726 for the year. Oregon wound up with the smallest attendance and betting total, chiefly because floods caused cancellation of the Portland Meadows meeting after 13 days.

Four states, Delaware, West Virginia, Arizona and New Mexico reported increases in betting over 1947. Attendance in Louisiana, Arkansas, Arizona and New Mexico was up in 1948.

The figures for Arkansas: 1947, days 30, betting, 11,421,987, attendance, 201,671. 1948, days 30, betting 11,305,291, attendance, 20,312.

Queen Mary Liner Sails Despite Several Leaks

Southampton, Eng., Jan. 5 — (AP)—The Cunard Liner Queen Mary sailed for New York today with 125-ton concrete patch over leaks in her hold.

Bad weather and mud wallowing delayed the liner four days. The delay was estimated to have cost $80,000.

The line said the queen would have no difficulty reaching New York by Monday morning since the concrete plugs have little to do with the speed.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be on hand for this game.

Asks Hike in Funds to Run Government

Little Rock, Jan. 5 —(AP)— The Arkansas Legislative council's budget committee recommends that $6,000,000 more a year be allocated to run the state government. The full council meets today to consider this recommendation and others of the committee.

The budget committee proposed annual expenditures $53,876,288 for the next biennium. It suggested revision of the revenue stabilization act to provide most of the $6,000,000 annual difference between that figure and present budgets. For some $900,000, however, new taxes would be necessary, said Lee B. Bessley, who will be Gov-elect Sir McMath's state comptroller.
